Start a business workshop for migrants

Following the successful workshop last year Bayside Council is once again supporting a workshop to help migrants and refugees start a small business.

“If you are a migrant or refugee and have an idea for starting a business then this is the workshop you need to attend,” Bayside Mayor Bill Saravinovski said.

Each year thousands of migrants and refugees arrive on Australian shores in search of a better life. But making a new start in a new country can be challenging.

The Start a Business Workshop gives migrants and refugees a fantastic opportunity to fulfil their dreams.

ABS data estimates one third of small businesses in Australia are owned by migrants.

After the outstanding success of the 2017 workshop, St George Sutherland Shire Employment Training and English Action Network (SSETEN) is again offering the opportunity to those in the community who are interested in starting their own business.

The Start a Business Workshop brings together Community and Business professionals who can assist to achieve your goals.
